NOTES IN SEASON.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have postponed until January the publication of "Foster's Complete Bridge," by R. F. Foster; also, "The Cost of Competition," by Sidney A. Reeve.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish shortly "A Fishing Catechism," by Colonel

R. F. Meysey-Thompson, author of "A Shooting Catechism," etc., who answers many questions or doubts that arise in the angler's mind on the subject of fishing "etiquette," salmon and trout fishing, dry-fly and wet-fly trout fishing, etc.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY have just brought out in their Living Masters of Music Series, a biography of Professor Edward A. MacDowell, by Lawrence Gilman. Mr. MacDowell is only forty-three years old, but has to his credit over 130 pieces of music, the best known including concertos in A and D minor, the "Sonata Tragica" and "Sonata Civica" and the "Woodland Suite," besides a number of songs. For over eight years he held the chair of Professor of Music at Columbia University and is now rated high among the composers of the day. He is of Scotch descent, and was born in New York City.

THE FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have in press a book of considerable attraction to all who are interested in United States history and the makeup of our complex population, entitled "The French Blood in America," by Lucian I. Fosdick. This book gathers up information which is often referred to but which is not available in any one volume. The author has collected a great deal of fascinating information of the French families that came to the colonies and the part they played in our development. He shows how names that are household words in American history—Revere, Fanueil, Bowdoin and Dana in New England; Jay, Desbrosses, Hamilton and a host of others in New York; Girard and Bayard in Pennsylvania—came from among the French refugees who sought asylum in our colonies at the time of the persecution of the Huguenots in France.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready the first volume of the new edition of Allbutt's "A System of Medicine;" "The Work of Preaching," by Professor Arthur S. Hoyt; a new edition of "The Conquest of Arid America," by Wm. E. Smythe; "A Text-Book on the Diseases of the Ear, Nose and Pharynx," by D. B. St. John Roosa, M.D., and Beaman Douglass, M.D.; Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," edited by Professor Hugh Moffatt, in Macmillan's Pocket Classics Series; a new edition of "The Tempters," by Henry Arthur Jones; "Physical Optics," by Professor Robert W. Wood; and "The Life and Death of Mr. Badman and The Holy War," by John Bunyan, in the series of Cambridge English Classics. They have also just ready a work on "The Modern Trust Company, its functions and organization," by F. B. Kirkbride and J. E. Sterrett, which gives a full description of the various lines of work in which a modern trust company engages, the duties of its officers, the relation of a trust company to the banking community and the public, etc., with facsimiles of many thoroughly up-to-date bookkeeping forms; also, the 1906 edition of "Who's Who," with several thousand additional biographies.

Smith, Goldwin. Irish history and the Irish question. N. Y., McClure, Phillips & Co., 1905. [N.] 8+270 p. O. cl., **$1.50 net.

Prof. Smith traces the general course of the history of Ireland and leads up to the present political situation. His interest and sympathy have been with Ireland throughout his life, as so many of his historical writings attest. In this survey of the Irish question, past and present, the author has tried to show what mistakes have been made both by the English and the Irish, and how a gradual improvement has been attained. He believes that a concession of larger self-government should be granted to Ireland rather than independence, for which the Nationalists clamor, or federation. The book is of special timeliness in view of the recent return to power of the Liberal party. Appendix contains an essay by Hugh J. McCann on "The Irish Land Code."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 23, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

PUBLISHERS' TRADE-LISTS IN NEED OF REFORM.

A CORRESPONDENT makes the sensible suggestion that, "as the new year approaches and mankind feels like turning over a new leaf," publishers should consider abolishing that long-standing abomination of carrying on their trade-lists, year after year, the titles of books that have long been out of print, and as to which there is no intention of ever printing new issues. The evil, our correspondent thinks, is growing to such an extent that it will soon be as necessary for the bookseller to have periodical lists of books out-of-print as it is now to have regular lists of the new books.

The complaint of our correspondent, we regret to say, is only too well founded. The practice followed by many publishers of persistently carrying on their trade-lists the titles of books long out of print causes much annoyance and confusion, not to mention loss of valuable time in corresponding and messenger service, at all times of the year; but it causes particular vexation during the busy season when the bookseller is already tried—often to the verge of desperation—by the importunities and demands of unreasonable and impatient customers. A book is called for. It is not in stock. Reference to the latest trade bibliographies proves fruitless. Finally the bookseller turns to his customer with "Sorry, but I can't trace the book just now. I will look again and send you word. Possibly the book is out of print." "Oh, no," loftily comes from the customer, "the book is still published by Messrs. Blank. I saw it in their latest fall catalogue, published a month ago." A reference to the publishers' list in the latest volume of the "Publishers' Trade List Annual" proves that the customer is correct. "I see you are right, madam; I will have a copy in the store this afternoon and send it to you." With an I-told-you-so look the customer sweeps out of the store. The boy is sent breathless—as breathless as a boy can be—to the publishers. "The book is o. p.," comes back the word. Now, though the bookseller makes the proper explanation, the customer, having detected the bookseller in ignorance in the first instance, will no doubt remain unconvinced, and begin a crusade that will very likely keep all the booksellers in town "on the jump" until the customer convinces herself by writing to the publisher direct. Then the ghost will be laid, but not until, in the aggregate, a day's time has been wasted by the different booksellers applied to and after much bad feeling has been engendered. Does the publisher think this an exaggeration? Let him try "clerking" in a bookstore for a few days next week, and convince himself.

As we have time and again pointed out, the construction of trade catalogues is sadly in need of reform in more directions than one. An arrangement in one alphabet, by author and title, with a classified index, would perhaps answer a booksellers' purpose best. The titles should be as brief as possible; wordy advertising comment and illustrations are superfluous and confusing and have no value to the booksellers. Such matter may properly be inserted in special catalogues for the public. Recent titles, but for one season only, might be distinguished by special type, to assist the bookseller in making up his orders. Defunct books should be eliminated as the edition is exhausted, and the titles of books out of print, but that may be reprinted at some future time, should be carried in an appendix. Publishers are now spending large sums of money in preparing and printing for the trade lists that are of but small service in an emergency. We hold that for less money better and more serviceable catalogues could be gotten up for the trade and the public, through which, because their contents are readily accessible, many sales could be made that are now lost because the titles cannot be got at when wanted, especially by the non-professional who, as a rule, is unused to handling catalogues.

Two decisions on copyright, one pro and one contra to the true principles, or perhaps the desirable features, of copyright, are recorded in this week's issue. Judge Holt, reiterating the opinion of Judge Townsend, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, handed down in November, 1904, in the important Werckmeister case holds, at least under the circumstances of this case, that notice of copyright on the original work of art is not requisite as a sine qua non of copyright privilege and protection, and has granted an injunction. Judge Kohlsaat in the Merriam vs. Ogilvie case, regarding the reprint of two of the Webster smaller dictionaries, on which copyright undoubtedly exists in this country, holds that the omission of the United States notice of copyright on an edition printed in England from plates made in this country vitiated the copyright to that extent, and permitted the defendant, within the law, to reprint these particular dictionaries. Judge Kohlsaat, in rendering his decision, took the unusual course of expressing judicial regret that the law compelled him to this judgment. The decision is something of a surprise to copyright authorities, and has already been appealed from. Happily, it is proposed in the copyright revision to make clear that the United States copyright notice need not be required on copies printed for sale elsewhere than in the United States.

OMISSION OF NOTICE IN BOOKS PRINTED ABROAD INVALIDATES COPYRIGHT.

FOLLOWING is the decision rendered by Judge Kohlsaat in the suit brought by the G. & C. Merriam Company in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, (Eastern Division,) to restrain the United Dictionary Company, of Chicago, from publishing and offering for sale copies of "Webster's High School Dictionary" and "Webster's International Dictionary," which the Merriam Company published in England jointly with George Bell & Sons, with the omission of the American copyright notice:

The question in this case is whether one who publishes in this country a copyrighted book, containing due notice of copyright, and who subsequently takes the plates which are made from type set within the United States, and which were used in printing said copyrighted book, to England, and there in conjunction with another publisher publishes another edition of the book from said plates, intentionally omitting therefrom the notice of the American copyright, can maintain a suit for infringement against another who imports a copy of the English book and proceeds to reproduce the same.

The only limit for the purposes of this hearing placed upon the right of the English publisher is contained in a written contract with him to the effect that he should not import the book or sell it for the purpose of importation into the United States. No breach of this condition is asserted. Defendant imported a copy of the English publication "for use" as he states and "not for sale" for the purpose of reproducing it in the United States. So far as the record shows, this and another subsequently imported by defendant were the only volumes of the English edition in the country. Defendant thereupon proceeded to photograph the book and make plates therefrom in this country, and to reproduce said imported book. The bill herein was filed to restrain defendant from such act. The case is now before the court on final hearing.

The copyright act prohibits the importation of a book not made from plates from type set in the United States, during the life of the copyright, but contains no prohibition as to a book made from type set in this country as was the case here. In the latter case there is no restriction placed upon importation, except that imposed by the revenue act, which it is not necessary here to consider. So far as disclosed in the agreed statement of facts, the two books in question were rightfully in the possession of defendant—as much so as though complainant had in person delivered the same to it without condition. If such an act constituted a publication within the terms of Section 4962 of the statute, which provides that no person shall maintain an action for the infringement of his copyright unless he shall give notice of his copyright by inserting in the several copies of every edition published the words prescribed by the section, then complainant falls within the prohibition, and cannot maintain this suit. I can see no distinction in legal effect between the status of the imported book under the above circumstances and that of a book published in this country from plates made here, which omits the requirements of notice prescribed in said Section 4962.

Any person desiring to take advantage of the copyright law must follow its provisions strictly. Wheaton v. Peters, 6 Peters, 593; Thompson v. Hubbard, 131 U. S. 123; Osgood v. Aloe Instrument Co., 83 Fed. 470.

It was held in Gottsberger v. Aldine Pub. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 381, that a sale of one volume constituted a publication and came within the prohibition of the copyright statute. In the case of Larrows-Loisette v. O'Loughlin et al., 88 Fed. Rep. 896, the court decided that one claiming copyright could not free himself from the strict terms of the statute by disposing of or printing books in which copyright is claimed, to be used by others under a contract which bound them not to disclose the contents.

The volumes in question amounted in my opinion to such a publication as will bar the complainant from maintaining this suit. What might have been the effect if the English edition had retained the notice of copyright appearing in the American edition need not be discussed. Such a notice was of no moment in England, and might, conceivably, have been deemed detrimental to the sale of the book. The equities of the situation are with complainant, and it is with regret that I find myself driven to a legal conclusion which ignores them. The remedy rests with Congress and not with the courts. The bill is dismissed for want of equity.

MACMILLAN & CO.'S CANADIAN BRANCH.

It has been the policy of the parent house of Macmillan & Co., in London, to establish independent houses in the various English-speaking countries just as soon as it has been practicable to do so. Thus, some ten years ago, what had been the American branch in New York was incorporated as an independent house, with American money represented. Early in this year in the same manner a company was formed in Melbourne for the purpose of properly handling the Australian business of the Macmillan houses. There are also at present branches of the London house at Calcutta and Bombay.

"In Canada," according to the Montreal Bookseller and Stationer, "both the English and American houses have been doing each year an increasing business, until now it has been decided to establish in Toronto a company with a Canadian charter, having the whole Dominion for its field of operation. It is expected that the premises at 25-27 Richmond Street, West, will be ready for the commencement of business January 1.

"Frank Wise will be the first president, and will act in the capacity of general manager. He was associated for a number of years with the New York house in various departments, and comes well equipped to look after the interests of the Canadian trade. Although born in Boston, Lincolnshire, Mr. Wise has been a resident of the United States for a number of years, being interested in banking and newspaper work in the West prior to his connection with the Macmillans.

"It is the intention to keep in stock a full supply of Macmillan titles, English and American, and also those published by Adam & Charles Black, London. This will enable the Canadian bookseller to replenish his stock in the shortest time possible, and save unpleasant waits both for himself and his customer.

"Although the Toronto house will not carry them in stock, arrangements have been made by them with the New York house to supply on order the publications of the various firms for which the New York Macmillans act as American agents, for instance: Dent, Bell, Bohn Libraries, Cambridge University Press, Whittaker and several others. This arrangement will also be of immense accommodation to the bookselling trade of Canada."

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN OF CONGRESS.

THE annual report of Herbert Putnam, Librarian of Congress, for the fiscal year 1905 shows that the library now contains 1,344,618 books, 82,744 maps and charts (pieces), 183,724 prints (artist) and 410,352 pieces of music. The manuscripts have not been enumerated, pending grouping into volumes. The law library contains 110,978 volumes.

The important collections acquired by purchase during the year were the Keller collection of Year Books, the papers of John J.

Crittenden, the papers of Duncan McArthur and of William Allen, manuscript records of Barbados, papers of Franklin Pierce and a collection of Burmese sacred writings, being examples of the purest Buddhistic texts. They are Ola manuscripts (on palm leaves).

The map collection was enriched by the purchase of seventy-two manuscript maps, which belonged to Richard, first Earl Howe, commander of the English fleet in America, 1776-77. The more important gifts to the library were received by the manuscript division.

Among gifts, the first to be mentioned in the report were the Breckinridge papers, the gift of Miss Sophonisba Preston Breckinridge and Desha Breckinridge, comprising letters, etc., of John Breckinridge (1760-1806), his son John (1797-1841), Robert Jefferson Breckinridge (1800-71), and W. C. P. Breckinridge (1837-1905). Mrs. Smith Thompson Van Buren gave 860 letters, received by Martin Van Buren while Secretary of State, Vice-President and President. The library now possesses papers of nine of the Presidents of the United States, namely, Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Van Buren, Polk, Pierce and Johnson. The collection of Andrew Johnson papers received an addition of fifteen letters written by Johnson. The print division received a collection of facsimile reproductions of engravings by the old masters as a gift from the government of Germany.

The librarian directs attention to the financial advantages to the libraries of the country resulting from the distribution of printed catalogue cards. He estimates the saving to subscribing libraries in the current year to be not less than $88,000. The library was visited during the year by 923,116 persons. The librarian says of the copyright laws:

There have been many endeavors to perfect our copyright laws, but they have been sporadic, as a rule directed to one particular defect, and generally undertaken by the single interest having a grievance, or, perhaps, even less fortunately, by advocates of an abstract justice which ran counter to a particular interest. The proposed legislation recognizes certain definite defects which entail certain substantial hardships.

AN EXHIBIT OF PRINTING.

THE Society of Printers, Boston, which is devoted to the study and development of the art of printing, is to hold an exhibition of printing in the Boston Public Library, January 1 to January 29, 1906. As a guide to this exhibition the society has compiled and will shortly publish a handbook of about forty-eight pages, giving a general outline of the story of the printing art. It has been proposed that a small permanent printing exhibition be formed from the material displayed, to be lent to such public libraries as may desire to present it, and a committee has been appointed to consider this proposition. Librarians who are interested could probably have this exhibition for little more than cost of transportation by addressing Henry L. Johnson, Secretary, Society of Printers, 4 Joy Street, Boston, Mass.

THE NOBEL PRIZES.

THE Nobel literary prize has been awarded to Sienkiewicz, the Polish author. The Nobel peace prize, valued at $40,000, went to Baroness Bertha von Suttner, an Austrian writer, author of "Die Waffen Nieder," ("Down with Arms,") a novel which was designed to spread the idea of peace existing at the time of its publication (1889) in England and the United States throughout Germany and Austria.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

ALLEGED INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT
IN "THE MASQUERADER."

HARPER & BROTHERS have filed a bill against M. A. Donahue & Co. and George W. Ogilvie & Co., in the U. S. Circuit Court of Illinois, at Chicago, charging them with infringement of their copyright in "The Masquerader." Judge Kohlsaat, on the 18th inst., set the case for hearing, ordering that defendants be restrained under the bill until the hearing.

COPYRIGHT IN PAINTING UPHOLD.

FOR the second time a decision was handed down on December 18 in the federal courts concerning the copyright of the painting "The Chorus," owned by the artist, W. Dendy Sadler, and exhibited in the London Royal Academy in 1894. Judge Holt, of the U. S. District Court, in New York, reiterating the opinion of Judge Townsend, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, rendered in November, 1904, (a substantial part of which was given in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, May 13, 1905,) sustains the contention of the plaintiff, that under the circumstances of the case, a painting or sculpture need not be marked "copyright" to protect them from piracy, and granted an injunction. Emil Werckmeister brought the action against the American Lithograph Company and the American Tobacco Company, charging them with having violated his copyright on the painting which he obtained rights from the artist for a photographic reproduction.

COMMUNICATIONS.

FOR ELIMINATING "O. P." BOOKS FROM PUBLISHERS' LISTS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: As the new year approaches, and mankind in general feels like turning over a new leaf, I wish you might suggest some means that would induce publishers in general to reduce that standing abomination of keeping year after year title of books on their catalogues that are out of print, and of which there is little hope that they will ever be in print.

This evil is growing to such an extent that a monthly cumulation of books out of print will be as much a necessity to a bookseller as an index to new books. As it now stands the new catalogues of some of our big publishers are of little real use to a bookseller who sells books. I for one would be willing to pay for a journal or monthly list that would supply information about out-of-print books, whether temporary or for any cause. Each publisher could do this by revising his own lists, but will he do it? H. H. TIMBY.

DECEMBER 18, 1905.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM SHARP, poet, essayist and novelist, died in Sicily, December 14. Mr. Sharp was born September 12, 1856, at Garthland Place, near Paisley, Scotland. After graduating he travelled extensively and, in 1879, settled down in London as an essayist and magazine writer. Through Philip Bourke Marston he came to know Rossetti, whose biographer he was later. In the same year that the life of Rossetti appeared, 1882, Sharp published "The Human Inheritance, Transcripts from Nature and Other Poems." This was followed two years later by "Earth's Voices," with the same explanatory sub-title. In 1884 he married a Highland relative, Elizabeth Amelia Sharp, with whom he collaborated in much literary work. They were joint authors of "Lyra Celtica," an anthology of English poems by Celtic writers, and Mrs. Sharp also was editor of "Women's Voices," and edited "Sea Music" and "Women Poets of the Victorian Era," etc. He collaborated with Blanche Willis Howard in the novel "A Fellow and His Wife," a story told in letters. Mr. Sharp lived much in Italy and France and he visited this country three times, the fruit of one visit being an anthology of "American Sonnets." He compiled an anthology of sonnets entitled "Sonnets of This Country," which has had a score of editions; an anthology of "Great Odes," and wrote two plays for the stage. He was also the editor of "The Canterbury Poets." Concurrently with the announcement of Mr. Sharp's death, his friend, Richard Whiteing, reveals the fact that Sharp was the author of the Celtic romances published under the pseudonym of "Miss Fiona Macleod." The works issued under this name include "Pharais: a Romance of the Isles," "The Mountain Lovers," "The Sin-Eater," "The Washer of the Ford," "Green Fire," "The Dominion of Dreams," "The Divine Adventure," and also several volumes of poetry.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MANY reports to the contrary notwithstanding, Mrs. Humphry Ward's present plans will not bring her to this country before the fall or early winter of next year.

LUCAS MALET, (Mrs. St. Leger Harrison,) has finished another novel, to the construction of which she has devoted the better part of four years. She has published nothing since her fascinating, though repelling, book, "Sir Richard Calmady," excited the world of novel readers. The new work as yet has not been christened.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

IN commemoration of the two-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Franklin the January Century will publish an estimate of "Franklin in France," from the pen of the late John Hay—a study prepared some years ago for delivery in Chicago, then laid aside because of ill-health. This witty and scholarly review of Franklin's service abroad will be illustrated with the Cochin portrait, made in France in 1777.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS will add to its list of publications two new journals to be devoted to the interests of the ancient classics, namely, Classical Philology, a quarterly, edited by Professor Edward Capps, of the University of Chicago, and the Classical Journal, to be published eight times a year and edited by Professors Arthur Fairbanks, of the University of Iowa, and J. Laing, of the University of Chicago.

The International Studio for January contains an article on "The Tonal School of America," by Mrs. Clara Ruge, fully illustrated from the paintings of Henry Ranger, Louis Paul Dessar, F. Ballard Williams, Paul Dougherty and others. Under the title "Nature's Aid to Design" appears an introductory article to a series of photographic reproductions of flowers adapted for the use of decorators, designers and art students. The paintings of Elizabeth Nourse, an American artist, are described with illustrations in an article by Anna Seaton Schmidt. Franz Von Lenbach is the subject of an appreciation by Professor Hubert von Herkomer. Among the color inserts are reproductions of the paintings by Franz Von Lenbach, John Hassall, Carolus Duran and Watteau.

SHERWIN CODY, author of "The Art of Short Story Writing," will begin next month a small humorous monthly entitled The Touchstone, described as "a human, sensible, amusing, critical review of the great world of women, literature, and the arts." Among the January contributors will be Leston Taylor, who has written some verses about "The Critics on Bernard Shaw," and Clyde Newman's caricature portrait of Robert Herrick "in the act of demonstrating his latest novel, 'Brain works of an American.'" The regular features will be some hitherto unpublished epigrams, satirical comments, etc., by the late Walter Blackburn Harte, under the heading "Bubble and Squeak" and "Behind the Veil," a short paper on the world of woman. The cover has been designed by Fred. Goudy.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE CHURCH LIBRARY ASSOCIATION, Cambridge, Mass., has published a useful "List of Books for the Advent Season of 1905," recommended for Sunday-school and Parish Libraries, giving upwards of 170 titles of new books and new editions, most of them with annotations. No charge is made for the catalogue, but contributions of ten cents and upwards would ensure the continuance of the work by meeting the expense of printing and mailing. (20 p. 16°.)

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have nearly ready a "Catalogue of Fifteenth Century Books in the Library of Trinity College and Marsh's Library, Dublin," with several books from a few other collections, compiled by T. K. Abbott, librarian of Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland. The catalogue is believed to be fairly complete. The volume will include several colored reproductions of illuminated initial letters from some Plutarch volumes, and texts and other illustrations in half-tone from Horace, Psalterium and the "Purgatory of St. Patrick."

THE GROlier CLUB, New York, has just completed its "Catalogue of Original and Early Editions of Some of the Poetical and Prose Work of English Writers from Wither to Prior, with Collations, Notes and more than 200 facsimiles of title-pages and frontispieces." The work, in three octavo volumes, is the second in a series of bibliographies of English writers, the first, issued in 1893, covering the period from Langland to Wither. Like the first series, this one has been prepared for the use and guidance of collectors, and will be welcomed by all lovers of old English books. The edition consists of 400 copies on paper, and three on Roman vellum. The price has been fixed at $30 the set.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"THE WORLD ALMANAC," for 1906, will be ready January 1. This almanac from the start has stood at the head of its class, and year by year has held its place as an up-to-date encyclopedia in condensed and handy shape.

FOX, DUFFIELD & Co. will publish early next year "The Eternal Spring," a novel of Italian life by Neith Boyce, with illustrations by Blendon Campbell, whose covers on some of the Christmas magazines this season have attracted attention.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY are bringing out a limited edition of Dr. Alfred T. Schofield's "The Knowledge of God: Its Meaning and Power." The author here departs from his usual subjects of philosophical psychology and health, and writes on a purely religious topic.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "The Storm Signal," the first novel of a new Southern writer, Gustave H. Mertins. "The Storm Signal" is a frank treatment of the negro question by a Southerner well able to reveal the Southern view of the problem. The pictures are by Arthur I. Keller.

JOHN A. McQUILLAN, well known through his long connection with George Routledge & Sons, and who is passing his days in darkness —having lost his sight some years ago—has removed from Guymon, Okla., to 630 North Emporia Avenue, Wichita, Kan. He would be pleased to hear from his old friends in the trade.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have in preparation, for publication next spring, a new volume by Nathan Gallizier, author of "Castel del Monte." The new book, entitled "The Sorceress of Rome," deals largely with psychological problems, and is a romance of Rome in the 11th century, a field hitherto unworked.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS, as already announced, will give its twenty-first annual dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, on Thursday evening, December 28. The committee desires to remind those who wish to be present that the exercises will begin promptly at 7:30 P.M. Those who have not yet bespoken tickets may obtain them from John Hovenden at 156 Fifth Avenue. Tickets are $10 each; tickets for members include the dues for the ensuing year.

EDWIN BORMANN, of Leipzig, claims to have discovered indubitable evidence that Bacon wrote Shakespeare's plays. The evidence is said to cover the reason for Bacon's secrecy, an explanation of the word Shakespeare, the relations of Bacon to the actor who served as his shield, and other matters throwing light on the subject, written in verse in English, Latin and French, and signed by Francis Bacon. The results of Mr. Bormann's investigations will be published early next year.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just brought out in their Music Story Series "The Story of the Harp," by W. H. Grattan Flood. The book traces the earliest form of the harp in Egypt, Assyria, Babylonia and Persia, its associations and use in the temples of the Jews, its introduction into the service of the Christian Church, its use in Ireland in the sixth century, with the stories of noted Irish saints and harpists, and the revivals of the popularity of the instruments are described in the activity of Handel, Adam, Mozart, Hugh Kelly and others. The book is illustrated.

THE centenary of the famous battle of Austerlitz, which was celebrated in France on December 2, has been commemorated in a sumptuous volume entitled "Austerlitz, 1805-1905." The text, printed in French, on vellum, by Lahure, is taken from the well-known memoirs of General Baron de Marbot, illustrated with water-colors by Alexandre Lunois, engraved by Leon Boisson and printed in colors by Wittmann, of Paris. Subscriptions will be received by the Librairie Conquet, (L. Carteret & Co.,) or may be placed through any dealer in foreign books.

METHUEN & Co., London, have published the "Howard Letters and Memories," by William Tallack. The volume, which is of interest to all classes of social workers, contains more than one hundred letters from well-known writers, statesmen and philanthropists, among them a number of Americans, such as Whittier, Rutherford B. Hayes, Dr. E. C. Wines and others, addressed to the secretary of the Howard Association, a society founded, under the patronage of Lord Brougham and others, for promoting the best methods of dealing with crime and pauperism.

A READER of Trine's "In Tune with the Infinite" is at present distributing upwards of 2000 copies of this book to his friends and business associates. The Life Books, of which this is one, have reached a combined circulation of over 300,000 copies. There is always an especially great demand for them during the holiday season. A Japanese and a Russian edition of the above mentioned book, in addition to the eight editions and translations already published, are now being negotiated for. Of the foreign editions so far published the largest demand has been for the German.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have in preparation a new book by George Barr McCutcheon, entitled "Cowardice Court," which will be published next spring in an attractive form, similar to his "The Day of the Dog," with illustrations in color by Harrison Fisher; "My Sword for Lafayette," the first historical novel ever written by Max Pemberton, which attracted much favorable attention as a serial; a new novel, yet to be named, by Beatrice Harraden; also, "A Lame Dog's Diary," by S. MacNaughton, author of "The Fortune of Christina McNab," a charming love story having its scenes in a quaint little English village.

THOMAS WHITTAKER, New York, has just published a contribution to the science of railroading, entitled "The Ways of Our Railways," by Charles H. Grinling, who goes into the subject extensively, yet in a popular and interesting form. The book is profusely illustrated. Among the timely books just issued by Mr. Whittaker for the holiday season are "The Holy Christ Child," a devotional study of the "Incarnation of the Son of God," by Rev. Archibald Campbell Knowles; and "The Bible for the Sick," compiled by the Rev. Henry King Hannah, intended as suitable selections of sacred Scripture for personal reading by the "shut-ins."

JOHN MURRAY, London, has been entrusted with the publication of the life of the late Duke of Argyll, which has been edited by the Dowager Duchess. The first part consists of a full and carefully prepared autobiography. In this are recorded the Duke's early years, his parentage and childhood, his surroundings and studies, especially in science and natural history. Succeeding to the title in 1847, he at once began to take an active part in politics, and in 1853 was admitted to Lord Aberdeen's Cabinet as Lord Privy Seal. The record of what passed in the cabinet both before and during the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny will afford much new light on these events. With the mutiny the autobiography, which was written from 1897 to 1900, ends, and the remainder of the "Life" is derived from the Duke's diaries and correspondence.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have made arrangements to publish in this country what may be regarded as an introduction to a contemplated comprehensive work on the expedition into the Central Tian-Shan Mountains carried out during 1902 and 1903 under the leadership of Dr. Gottfried Merzbacher, namely, his report published under the authority of the Royal Geographical Society of Great Britain. The expedition was undertaken to get more thorough information of the orographical and geological structure and of the flora and fauna and glaciers of the Tian-Shan region. The present report was written in Tashkend, immediately after the return of the expedition from the mountains. Its purpose is to "give particulars of the itinerary of the expedition and a general narrative of its experiences, specially those new or hitherto unknown." The volume is illustrated with half-tones, mainly from photographs, and these pictures have been selected from a collection numbering over 2000.

RAPHAEL TUCK, SONS & Co have again brought out for the holiday season a large and varied line of Art Calendars in colors and photogravure, and Christmas and New Year cards and booklets and post-cards. Among the more striking of the calendars—and they are all beautiful in their way—are "Turner's Venice," beautiful reproductions, in colors, of Turner's paintings; "In the Netherlands," photogravure reproductions of well-known Dutch paintings; "Way Down the Suwanee River," a tambourine-shaped calendar with pictures of negroes in colors; and the "Little Geisha" calendar, a fan-shaped design with pictures of Japanese girls. Two Dickens calendars—"In Dickens's Land" and "Charles Dickens"—will appeal to lovers of the great novelist. The productions of the house have attained so high a reputation for consistent excellence, both in artistic conception and in material execution, that it is quite superfluous to repeat the warm commendations we have so often expressed in previous years.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish early next month Winston Spencer Churchill's biography of his father, the late Lord Randolph Churchill. Lord Randolph was not simply a clever man; he was one of the ablest men of his age—a pre-eminent party leader, and a power both in and out of Parliament. Among other distinctions he was the founder of the Tory Democracy. It is curious to note that his son, who has carried the Tory Democracy to its logical conclusion, brings out the biography of his father just as he becomes Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in a Liberal Government. They will also bring out early in the new year a volume entitled "The Arbitrator," concerning which there seems to be more or less mystery. The author's name is not given, and the volume, which is more or less in the form of Walton's "Compleat Angler," consists in a dialogue of which the chief part is carried on by the personage known as "The Arbitrator." The horrors and the needlessness of war, the advantages of arbitration, and the blessings of peace are his main themes.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on January 17 Miss Ellen Glasgow's new novel, "The Wheel of Life." Miss Glasgow, after winning brilliant success as an interpreter of Virginia life, shifts the scene of her new novel to New York City. The hero is a literary man. It is the largest and most ambitious novel so far by the author of "The Deliverance." In February they will bring out "The Dog Book," by James Watson, complete in two volumes. Later will follow a posthumous work by the late Henry Demarest Lloyd, entitled "Man, the Social Creator." For the several years before his death Mr. Lloyd planned to write a book on religion, which should embody his conception of man as a creator and potential god, and wherein the manifestations of this creative ability which are to be seen in many parts of the world should be described. This desire of Mr. Lloyd's led him to visit Europe and Australasia to investigate the various governmental and co-operative experiments which he thought expressive of what he called social love. These experiments he depicted in books already published, but the manuscript which he prepared for publication under the name of "Man, the Social Creator," contains his matured and deepest thought on the significance of those endeavors.

THE GRAFTON PRESS, New York, will publish early next month a new book by Henry Wallace Phillips, whose "Red Saunders" has made him known the country over. The new book is entitled "Mr. Scraggs," and is the personal account of incidents in the strenuous life of one of Red Saunders's pals. Mr. Scraggs, although at times a mournful individual, has added considerably to the hilarity of such parts of the country as have had the good fortune to make his acquaintance. These various adventures of his have appeared from time to time in the Saturday Evening Post and McClure's Magazine. They also announce an interesting book for immediate publication. It is a reprint of Edward Hall's famous "Chronicle of Henry the Eighth," in two volumes, the edition being limited to 100 sets for sale in America. Charles Whibley, the well-known English writer, has contributed a striking introduction. This book was completed by Richard Grafton in 1550, but as its destruction was ordered by Queen Mary in 1555, it is to-day excessively rare, and it is probable that no complete copy is in existence. It is an authentic, contemporary record. The chronicler had a keen eye for the pomp and show which were at once Henry's delight and policy. This reprint has been made from the edition of 1550.

The Second (or Supplementary Volume) of the

American Catalog

1900-1905

The second volume of the new "American Catalog, 1900, '01, '02, '03, '04," is now ready for delivery.

The first volume, issued in June last, is a complete record in itself, being a dictionary-catalog of all books recorded between January 1, 1900, and January 1, 1905. In its one alphabet every book is entered at least three times (by author, title and subject), with information as to size, price, publisher, year of issue, etc. It forms the latest addition to the old series of the "American Catalogue," published in quarto form, while the newest volume is an octavo, which is generally conceded to be a much handier shape. We can reasonably affirm that every dealer needs such a permanent catalog in his business, while every library of importance should have this standard bibliographical work on its shelves, since its usefulness in the world of books is on a par with a time-table in the railroad world.

The second, or supplementary volume, contains the full title entries, with annotations, given in the "Weekly Record" of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY during the five years 1900, '01, '02, '03, '04, cumulated into one alphabet for each year; that is, into five alphabets. This is planned to answer the demands of librarians, booksellers and others who wish this valuable material, in available shape, for classifying and describing and for permanent reference.

For the book dealer the second volume is a very useful record of book valuation. It gives in form for ready reference brief descriptive notices of the important books published during the period mentioned, describing concisely the contents of each work and explaining many titles which, in themselves, mean little or nothing or are misleading. For descriptive cataloging, a bibliographical work of this kind is almost priceless.

The two volumes are uniformly bound in half morocco. The price is $12.00 for both or $7.50 for either separately. The edition is limited, only 230 copies of the first volume and 110 of the second volume remaining unsold. We reserve the right to advance the price when the balance of either is reduced to 100 copies.
